Charting Social Change

Vol 41 | No 1

COMMUNITY

A magazine at its heart is an aspirational community. But so often we read something, put it down, and move on. What if we could linger a little longer in the company of others whose distinct lens on the mosaic could enrich our own?

Gather a group of six to ten people together to share a meal and conversation around the topic of ideology.

Several discussion prompts are suggested on the back. When the evening's over, use this bookmark in whatever book you're reading and let the memory of the discussion enrich the words.

DINNER

We recommend a Spring Vegetable Gnocchi paired with Domaine de l'Aumonier, Touraine, Sauvignon Blanc.

DISCUSSION

- Where do you fall on the top-down versus bottom-up question of social change? Why?
- Is conversion—whether individual or societal—more about fulfillment or overthrow?
- Does online life change the nature of your relationships or just foreground your desire for connection?
- How does the concept of “spiritual motherhood” strike you? Can you recall a time when you’ve been the beneficiary of its logic?
- What broad cultural shift has been hardest on you over the last decade? Conversely, is there one that has eased the way for greater faithfulness?
